So instead of carrying books to school many girls carry a sewing machine to work.

Brave Girl (title) . . . The girl's got grit . . .

Companies are hiring thousands of immigrant girls.

So instead of carrying books to school many girls carry a sewing machine to work.

There are two filthy toilets, one sink, and three towels for 300 girls to share.

Clara makes friends with the other factory girls.

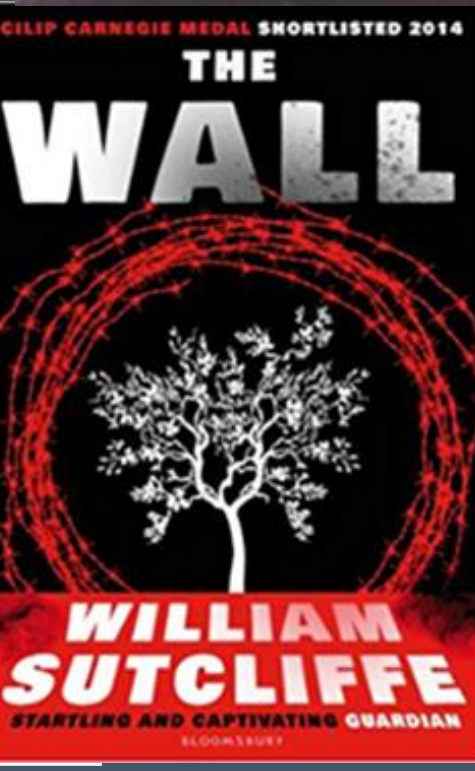

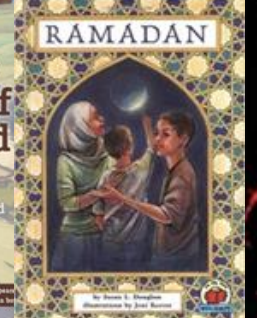

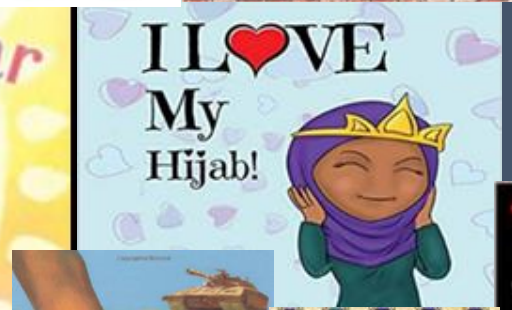

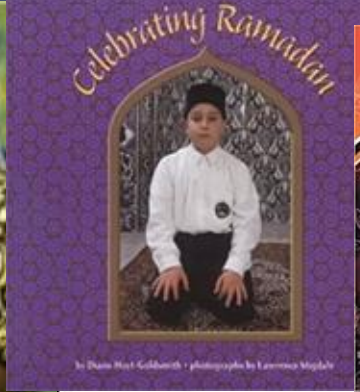

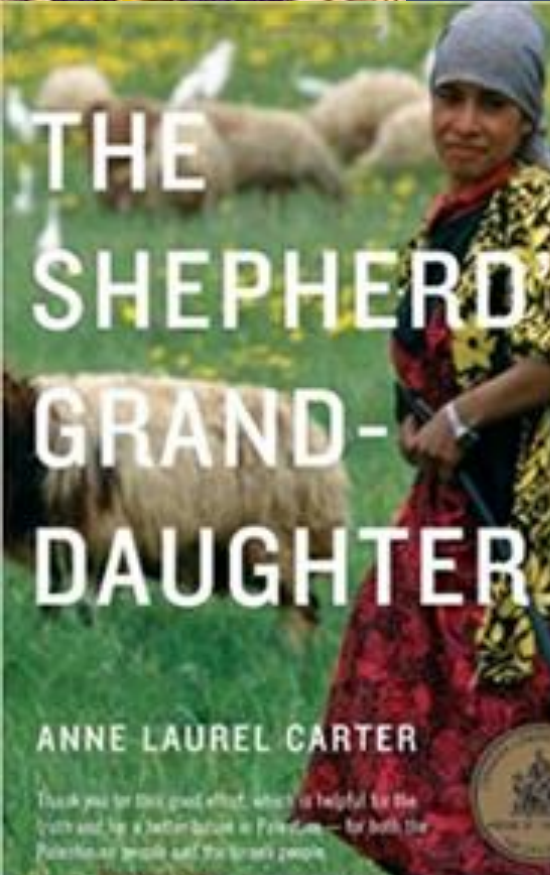

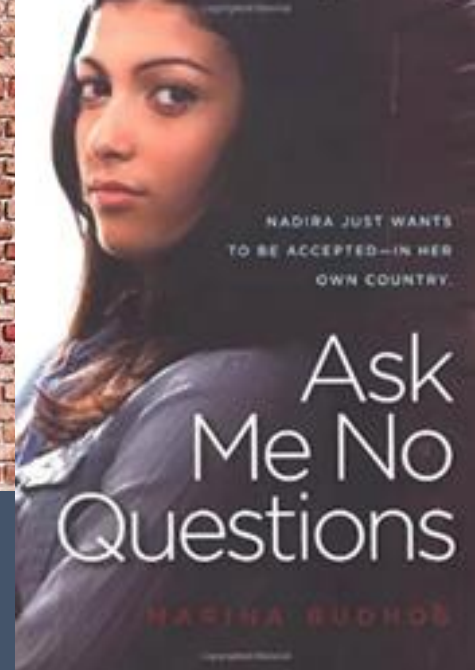

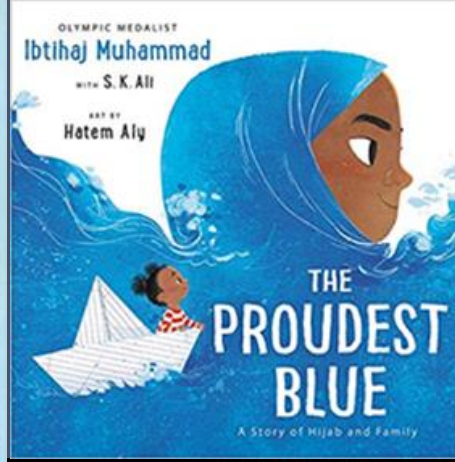

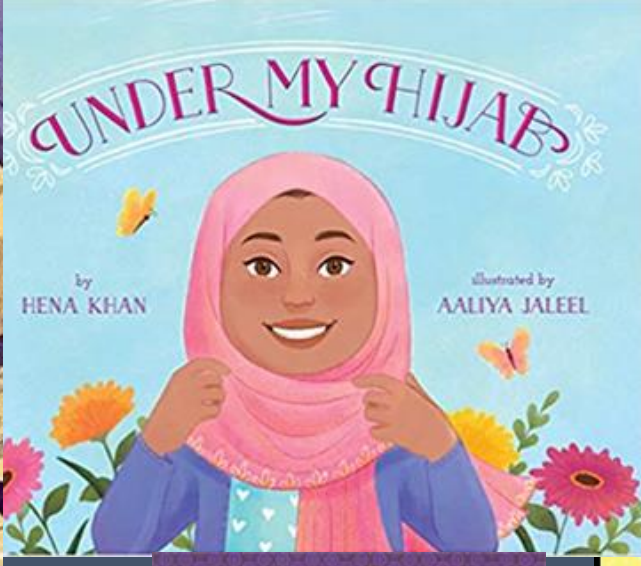

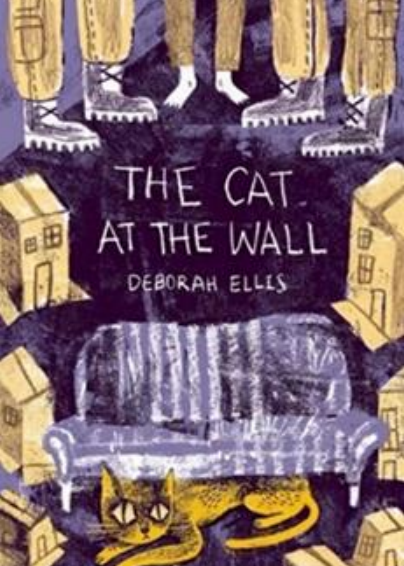

At lunch they share stories and secrets as if they were in school where they belong. Clara's smolders with anger if not just for herself but for all the factory girls working like slaves. . . .

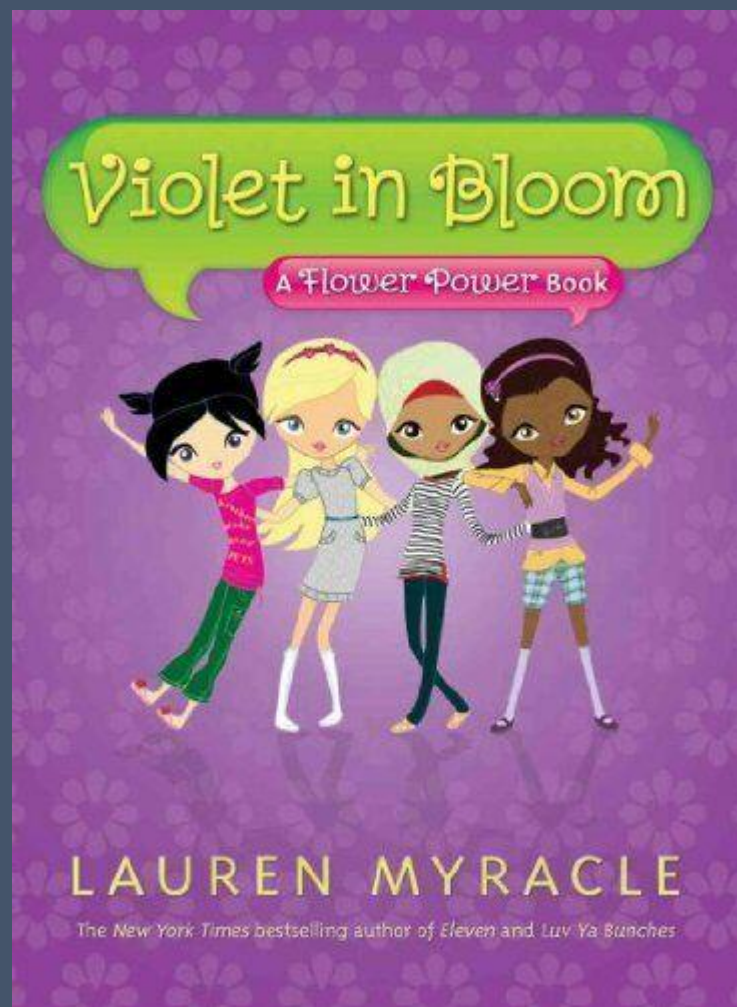

Because they're girls? . . . Clara urges the girls to fight for their rights.

When they're punished for speaking up she cries strike and the girls walkout.

A few days later she's on the picket line again and the other girls think if she can do it we can do it too.

It's a revolt of girls— for some are only 12 years old and the rest are barely out of their teens. . . . “Stand fast girls!” . . . the girls walk alongside the men on the icy sidewalks of the picket line. . . . and the bravest hearts may beat in girls only five feet tall.

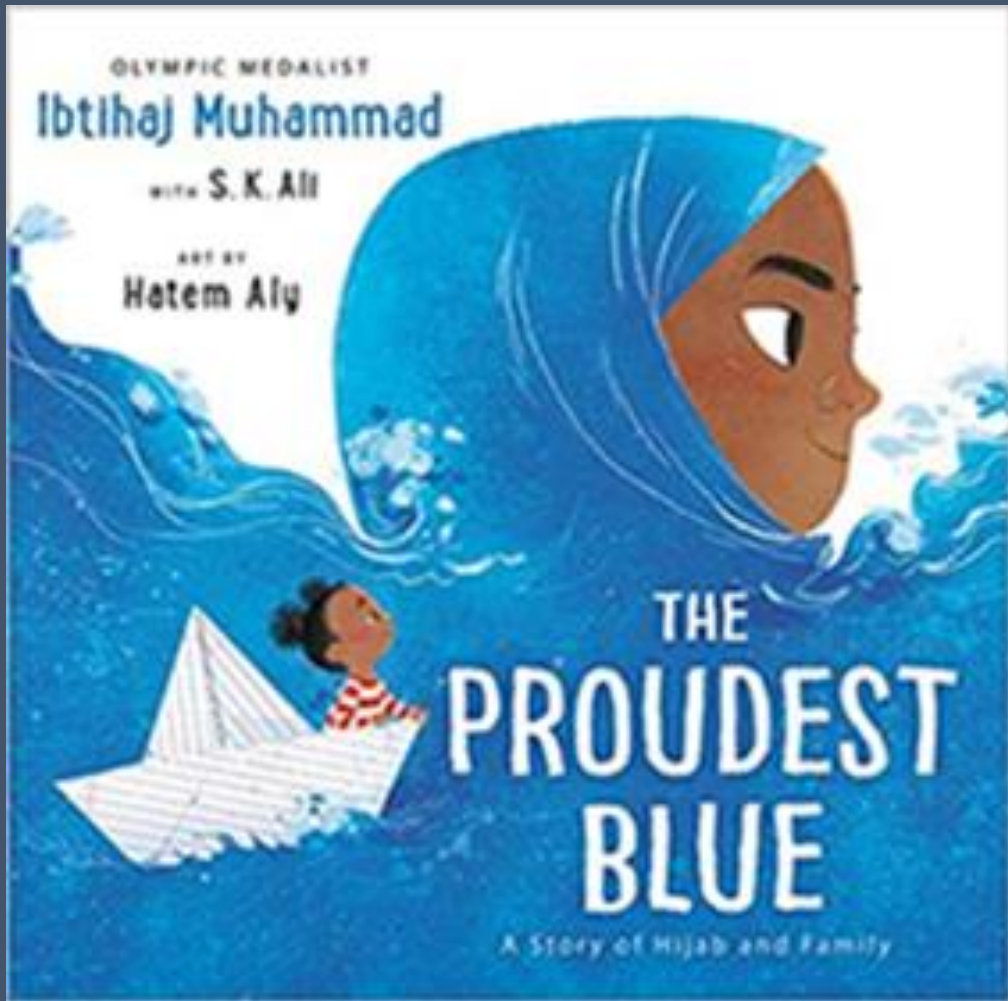

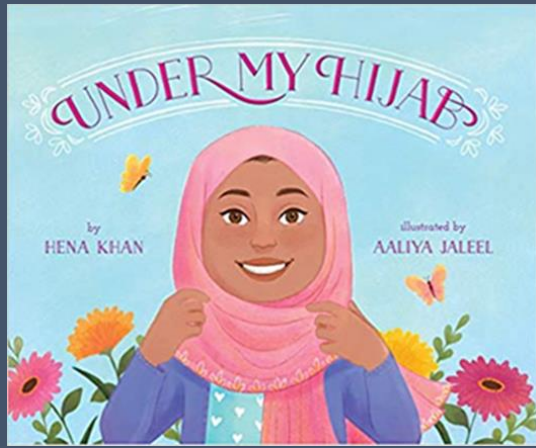

“I love your hijab. Is it new?”

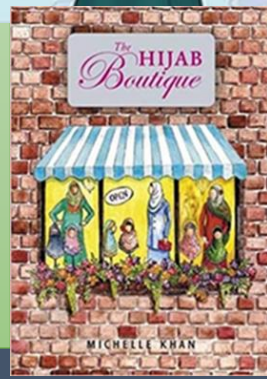

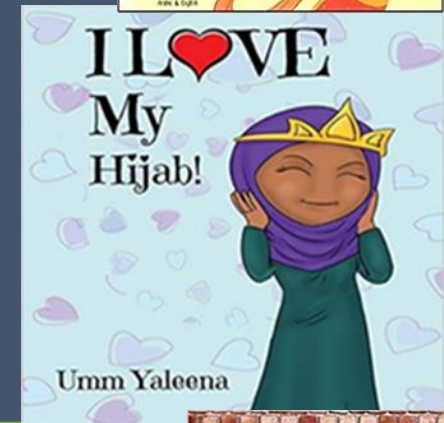

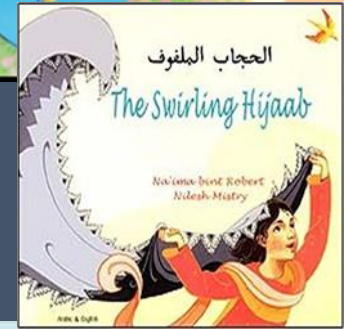

Yasaman looks pleased.

“Uh-huh. My cousin gave it to me.” “It’s gorgeouth. I wish I could wear a head thcarf.” (Chapter 21)

Olean High School students wear hijabs to school Wednesday to recognize World Hijab Day and show solidarity with Muslims. They said it gave them an opportunity to experience what some Muslim women experience everyday and they received positive feedback from their peers and teachers.

About Haymarket Books

Haymarket Books is a nonprofit, progressive book distributor and publisher, a project of the Center for Economic Research and Social Change. We believe that activists need to take ideas, history, and politics into the many struggles for social justice today. Learning the lessons of past victories, as well as defeats, can arm a new generation of fighters for a better world. As Karl Marx said, "The philosophers have merely interpreted the world; the point however is to change it"

We take inspiration and courage from our namesakes, the Haymarket Martyrs, who gave their lives fighting for a better world. Their 1886 struggle for the eight-hour day, which gave us May Day, the international workers' holiday, reminds workers around the world that ordinary people can organize and struggle for their own liberation. These struggles continue today across the globe—struggles against oppression, exploitation, hunger, and poverty.

researchers have said that the numbers are much higher.”<sup>14</sup> Pornography is also distributed via satellite TV, with one of the biggest companies, DirecTV, offering Playboy’s Spice Network and LFP Broadcasting’s Hustler TV.

DirecTV has an interesting history, as it was sold by General Motors in 2003 to Rupert Murdoch’s News Corp. Murdoch owns the Fox Television Network, Twentieth Century Fox, the New York Post, the LA Dodgers, and TV Guide, to name just a few. Murdoch at that time also owned the second-largest satellite provider, EchoStar Communications Corporation, which, according to the New York Times, made more money selling hard-core pornography films through its satellite subsidiary than all of Playboy’s holdings combined.<sup>15</sup> An example of synergy here is that Murdoch also owns HarperCollins, the company that published Jenna Jameson’s best-selling book How to Make Love Like a Porn Star. In 2006, the Liberty Media group took control of DirecTV, and it also has part ownership in Sirius Radio, which carries the Howard Stern Show, a show that serves as an advertisement for the porn industry by regularly inviting porn stars
